me: dude
me: Just because you in Washington and you who are so out of touch with life in the media, just because you don't believe in anything doesn't mean nobody else does. We do. You know why you're confused by this show? It's because I believe in something. You don't.
Tea parties believe in small government. We believe in returning to the principles of our Founding Fathers. We respect them. We revere them. Shoot me in the head before I stop talking about the Founders. Shoot me in the head if you try to change our government.
I will stand against you and so will millions of others. We believe in something. You in the media and most in Washington don't. The radicals that you and Washington have co-opted and brought in wearing sheep's clothing — change the pose. You will get the ends.
You've been using them? They believe in communism. They believe and have called for a revolution. You're going to have to shoot them in the head. But warning, they may shoot you. They are dangerous because they believe. Karl Marx is their George Washington. You will never change their mind. And if they feel you have lied to them — they're revolutionaries. Nancy Pelosi, those are the people you should be worried about.

me: I'm not "partisan" me: I'm an anarchist me: I've attacked Obama on Fox News me: talk to any of the people more conservative than you who have interacted with me me: I don't engage in intellectual dishonesty Patrick: Read the whole, entire transcript. The whole thing. Not the "relevant parts" that people have carved out. The whole thing.
me: I did me: because you asked me to Patrick: Starting from the first words? me: tell me who he is referring to me: "OK. America, here is why I think this has really been a problem for most Americans — I think this has been a problem, because, do you see Bill Clinton as a communist?

me: if those are the first words, I've read them me: so who does "them" refer to?
Patrick: It's tough to tell at times because we don't have the video, and he is clearly making gestures that we are missing. But in general he is talking about leftist violent revolutionaries me: and who is the "they" who might shoot first?

me: so
Patrick: He is not telling anyone to shoot them Patrick: He is saying they will leave the politicians and media no other choice me: let's examine the words themselves, Pat Patrick: I have me: Tea parties believe in small government. We believe in returning to the principles of our Founding Fathers. We respect them. We revere them. Shoot me in the head before I stop talking about the Founders. Shoot me in the head if you try to change our government.

me: They believe in communism Patrick: I read the words and I have written many posts about this. Three, I think Patrick: Have you read them? me: They believe and have called for revolution me: You're going to have to shoot them in the head. But warning, they may shoot you. me: I've read one of them me: Suffice to say I was not convinced insomuch as that he introduces the subject and then says that "you" will have to shoot that subject in the head me: we have video of that portion Patrick: Who do you think "you" is?
Patrick: I have to go eat, and if you can't answer that, you haven't done your reading me: it is either his viewers, or the communist revolutionaries. If the latter, he is warning them that patriotic Americans might shoot them first me: very well
Patrick: Lord
me: Speaking
Patrick: "You" is neither Patrick: Fail. me: Who is it, then?
Patrick: It is the lefty politicians and the lefty news media me: I see me: How do you figure?
Patrick: Look: go read my posts. They make it very clear me: feel free to eat and get back to me Patrick: Gotta go

me: I'll do that me: will get back to you Patrick: Seriously, if you think "you" = viewers or revolutions you haven't begun to understand what he is saying. At all.
me: I hope they are good enough to transcend grammar and usage Patrick: revolutionaries, that is me: REvolutionaries seems to include those in Washington me: since he says that me: specificallyt me: saying over and over again "you haven't done your reading" isn't an argument. I mean, it is.
me: anyway, enjoy your dinner
